Translation Services (SIN 541930)

JTG has performed technical translation work for numerous federal agencies including the U.S. State Department, Department of Justice, Department of Homeland Security, Department of Defense, and various intelligence services. Our private sector clients include top industry practitioners in information technology, e-commerce, law, medicine, chemicals, machine tools, defense, agribusiness, finance, communications, and engineering.

Translation of Documentation

JTG's translation methodology is to assure that the translation reads as though it were originally written in the target language. This requires close attention to linguistic and cultural nuances and references. JTG takes a total approach to each assignment focusing on and anticipating how, when and in what environment the translation will be used.

Proofing and Editing Services

Every JTG translation is edited as an essential service. For each project, a team of at least two equally qualified translators per language work in tandem to translate, revise and proof the text. This ensures that each translation is grammatically and syntactically correct, technically accurate, and linguistically and culturally adapted to the target audience.

In addition, the JTG project manager provides a final content check of each translation before it is delivered to the client. In the event the government has previously translated material to review or evaluate, JTG will follow the same stringent review procedures.

Technically Qualified and Experienced Native-Speaking Language Experts

All language experts are screened by JTG's senior personnel to meet or exceed requirements. JTG adheres to the Federal Interagency Language Roundtable (ILR) and American Translators Association (ATA) guidelines as an integral part of its selection process.

Glossary Development

Glossary development is the initial step to translation/localization projects. JTG translators gather reference materials and build a glossary of key industry terms. For projects that fit certain criteria, JTG also uses terminology management software to assist in the process of maintaining consistency in terminology within and across documents as well as in the glossary development phase.

Final Production Layout in Required Media Formats

Completed assignments can be delivered and received as hard copy, electronically, or in any format that is required. JTG works across platforms (PC and Mac). We accept source documents in a variety of formats.

Translation Project Management & Consultation

Superior project management and knowledge of the language industry and support software tools differentiates JTG from other firms. JTG organizes resources around each project's objectives. Each assignment's language team is carefully tailored to the project's requirements. JTG is always available to meet with our clients and is available to consult on topics such as project scope, resources, best practices, and best tools for the project.

These three forms of interpretation apply to community, telephonic, voiceovers, sight translation services, any other forms of interpretation. Interpretation is used in multiple forums: meeting, conference, seminars, litigation, briefing, training, and more.

- Simultaneous Interpreting

Simultaneous interpreting is rendered in the simultaneous mode (i.e., with no pauses) and typically takes place in formal settings, where the interpreter is in a booth, outfitted with sound equipment, and cannot seek clarification or affect the pace of the discussion.

- Consecutive Interpreting

Consecutive interpreting is rendered in the consecutive mode (i.e., with pauses) and typically takes place in informal settings, but it can also take place in formal settings, if requested. In consecutive interpreting, the interpreter begins speaking only after a speaker has finished and typically stands near the speaker while listening and taking notes as the speech progresses.

- Escort Interpreting

Escort interpreting is rendered in the consecutive mode, and the interpreter accompanies an individual or a group on a tour or a visit, or to an interview or meeting.

Highly-Skilled, Linguistically Gifted Interpreters

JTG's excellence in providing interpretation services has been substantiated in its pool of trained interpreters who are known professionally not only for their interpreting and linguistic ability, but also for their broad and continuing educations, specialized knowledge, cultural sensitivity, physical and intellectual dexterity, interpersonal skills, and flexibility.

The staff at JTG continually monitors its corps of interpreters by obtaining customer feedback and continually measuring that feedback against its staff's own expertise in the field, acquired at various specialized institutions of higher learning, as well as through active involvement in the interpreting industry and in memberships with professional associations and standards organizations. The most important components are the credentials of highly qualified interpreters. Effective language service management requires in-depth knowledge of individual practitioners.
